THE DEATH OF HON. CHARLES H. BRYAN.

About half past 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon Hon. Charles H. Bryan died suddenly at Glasevitch's Restaurant. He had taken a seat on one of the high stools by the little counter and was eating his dinner. One of the attendants noticed that he seemed to be retching, as if overcome by nausea. He was helped toward the door and in a moment after became unconscious. Those about him being alarmed by his condition thought he was stricken with apoplexy. Dr. Davison being called in discovered that he was choked. He opened his mouth and inserting his fingers, drew out a large piece of beef which had lodged in and against the windpipe. Assistance came too late. He was quite dead. An autopsy will be held to-day at 10 o'clock. Thus we briefly record the sudden ending of the very eventful life of one of the ablest and most widely known of the public men of the Pacific Coast. The deceased was a native of Ohio. He was contemporaneous with Milton S. Latham and the Ohioans of a like age. He came to California at a very early day and settled in Marysville, where he entered upon the practice of his profession. At once he took rank with the foremost men in the State, and enjoyed a lucrative practice. Upon the death of Hon. Alexander Wells he was appointed by Governor John Bigler to fill the vacancy on the Supreme Bench caused by the demise of that distinguished gentleman. We believe he never filled any other office in that State. In the early "Washoe" days he came to this side of the mountains. He was a very useful and eminent member of the first Constitutional Convention held with a view to the formation, here, of a State Government. In 1864 Mr. Bryan, who at that time was wealthy, brought to California the celebrated horse "Lodi." Many of our readers will recollect the great race at Sacramento between "Lodi" and "Norfolk," in the summer of 1865. Bryan won from this State to Oregon, where he at once took a leading place at the bar. He returned to this State about two years ago, and until within the past two or three months, lived in Virginia City. Here was one of the very ablest minds ever known to the people of these far Western States. He ranked with the great lawyers. He was a man of singular amiability of character, and we doubt if he had an enemy at the time of his death. The shock was very great to everybody here. The tenderest regards are expressed for him on all sides. He had no wife or children. His brother, Marshall Bryan, who used to live with him in Marysville, has lived in New York for several years. He will be buried, from the Capitol, at 2 o'clock to-morrow—or at any rate that is the present plan. His brethren of the bar and bench, and the Pioneers, will unite with his multitude of friends to do him honor.

A very interesting letter from Henry Meyer Junior, dated Deadwood May 4 will be given to the readers of the MORNING APPEAL to-morrow. Meantime don't start for the Black Hills until you have read it.

The Little Girls are going to have a party at Turner's Hall to-morrow night, we believe.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

A billet-doux which reached us yesterday reads as follows: "You are respectfully invited to attend a Social Party to be given at Arlington Hall on next Wednesday evening, May 16. Dancing to begin at 8 o'clock. Committee of invitation." We are very thankful for this invitation and we hope we may see no restraining cause for not lending the weight of our influence to the gayeties of the occasion. It being a possible thing, however, that we cannot be present we will take this timely opportunity for saying that we quite approve of dancing if it be done in moderation. And speaking of dancing we are reminded to make the announcement officially, that the party for the benefit of the Public School at the Glenbrook will take place on Thursday evening, the 17th. Those attending this entertainment will do so with the very hearty concurrence of the MORNING APPEAL. The cause of education is greatly to be cherished; and any movement looking to the enlargement of the area of letters should stimulate the active co-operation of every man at the Glenbrook besides awakening a sense of enthusiasm among the mothers, the daughters and the maturing youth of that small city of "the unsalted sea." Let Glenbrook do her duty and the problem of "what shall we do with our children?" will come nearer than ever to a salutary solution.

Not widely apart from this subject is the fact that Schoolmaster General Kelly departed hence last night for a week among the literary enthusiasts of Churchill county. It is said that the distinguishing trait between man and the brute creation is the capacity, in the former, for laughter. The dog makes a very commendable effort in the direction of this mirthful demonstration by the wagging of his tail. A gentle undulatory motion of that appendage may be taken for a smile; a more decided movement of the member is to be interpreted into a gentle cackling; while the rapid and vehement action of the tail is unmistakably a hearty guffaw. But at best this is a mere pantomime. There is nothing in all this wagging which is up to the contagious mirthfulness of a sympathetic human snort, coming unrestrained and irrepressible from the depths of the comical capacities of man. We have witnessed a casualty on Sunday which came very near depriving a certain bulldog of even the circumscribed capacity for imitating the human laugh with which Providence has invested the canine family. Our friend Doctor Benton has a coach-dog. The Doctor having just started on a journey up Carson street, this dog manifested his joy by jumping and capering in front of the horses. Just opposite Mr. Farrell's bar was a bulldog. When his severe eye rested upon that bespotted distant relative of his, the blood of his ancestors boiled within him. It was a thought, an impulse, a mad rush and an attack. There was a yelp and then a roar. The first proceeded from the frightened coach dog. The latter was emitted by his baffled assailant. Events followed one another with quick succession, but they who looked the most sharply detected the situation in all its intricate phenomena. Scarcely had the bulldog made his assault when one of the wheels of the buggy settled down upon his tail, amputating the end of that misguided adornment in the most summary and unmistakable manner. Then we saw, with a newly awakened curiosity, that a dog's tail may also express dissatisfaction, surprise, astonishment and disgust. We never saw any creature, human or otherwise, exhibit a more painful sense of bewilderment and humiliation than were painted on every inch of that dog's tail and in all the lineaments of his face, as he stood there watching the retreating form of that buggy. All thought of conflict had departed out of his mind; and "the big wars that make ambition virtue" had suddenly become uninteresting to him as to the most peaceful and harmless lamb. With a motion which betokened an inexpressible depth of sorrow, repentance and profound dismay, he stole one bitter reproachful look at the hard face of the street, another of ill-disguised curiosity which far outweighed all unworthy thought of mere physical pain, upon his disfigured and bleeding tail, and moved away from the scene, sorrowful, downcast and brokenhearted. Mr. Boskowitz begs to say to his debtors that his customary playfulness does not reach out to or include his call for the payment of outstanding indebtedness. He proposes always to keep on hand for the benefit of his numerous and discriminating patrons the very best wares in his line of traffic. To this end he must have money. He pays cash and pays it out of his receipts. It is a mistake to suppose that he pumps up his ready money from some secret inexhaustible well. It comes, like eggs, in the natural way. So we join him in this very reasonable request for speedy settlements. . . . Controller Hobart, who did not arrive the last time we announced his coming, will in all probability, arrive here this morning. His brother, Hobart Pasha, is still taking pot luck with the sublime Porte.

SUDDEN DEATH.—W. G. Wyatt, an old settler, was found dead near Cradlebaugh's bridge in Douglas county on Friday. A verdict by a Coroner's Jury is to the effect that he died from a sudden-acting malady of the brain. The dead man had had some domestic troubles in his life and it is thought that these brought on the condition which caused his death. His age was sixty years or thereabout.

Sheriff Swifts little daughter, Lillie, was better yesterday, and the hopes are strengthened that she will weather the dreadful attack.

NACHES AS A FARMER.—Says the Silver State of Saturday:

Chief Naches has so far recovered from his recent illness as to be able to get around once more. He says he will have fifty acres of land under cultivation at his ranch on the Big Meadows this season. The Indian Agent at Pyramid Lake Reservation has furnished him with farming implements and seed.

Says the Footlight of Saturday:

Day before yesterday Captain J. B. Overton, Superintendent of the Water Company, transplanted a barrel of young trout from the hatching-house on the old Ophir grade to the reservoir on the Divide.
